Death at Jones Station. Little Grace Jones, daughter of Jacob C. and Alice G. Jones, died Tuesday, January 24, 1893, of pneumonia, after a sickness of eight days, aged one year and two months. At 3 o'clock the next evening her remains were taken to the John B. Haynes graveyard, on the farm of her uncle, Samuel C. Roberts, where after religious service by Rev. H. W. Morton and singing by the local choir, they were laid by the side of her little sister, Jennie, who preceded her April 1, 1891.

Mr. Jones is a merchant and the postal clerk here and though he has been successful in business since he has resided at our Station, in less than two years he has had two deaths in his family, besides much sickness. Through respect for the death of this little child, the schools and public works were suspended to attend her funeral and interment.

Wreck on the M. V.

A bad wreck occurred near Big Clifty Saturday night, which cost three trainmen their lives. The west-bound freight was running under good speed and when within a few feet of the east end of the switch located one mile this side of Big Clifty the switch was found to be open and before the train could be checked it ran into the open switch and the sharp curve threw it over. Engineer Jim Price, of Louisville, a popular young man who had just been promoted by the company, was caught by his engine and instantly killed. Frank Turney, fireman, was also caught and pinned to the side of the boiler where the escaping steam literally cooked him. He was dead when help reached him. Walter Davis, a colored brakeman of Paducah, was crushed beyond recovery and died instantly. While working about the wreck, roadmaster Joe Ross fell and broke his arm, but was not otherwise injured. The track was soon cleared and trains are running now on time.

Honor to Whom Honor is Due.

Dr. W. Pope Yeaman, of Columbia, Mo., in a recent letter to his old friend and preceptor in Theology, Dr. Coleman, our fellow-townman, closes with the following complimentary reference:

"I greatly rejoice in the fact that the Lord has so abundantly honored your long and self-sacrificing and arduous labors in the Green river country. You have done more in that region of Kentucky for the cause of civilization, morality and christianity than any man that ever lived, more than all the courts and penal laws of the realm, and should be held and honored and supported as a benefactor of our race."

"I thank God from my heart that He has so blessed you, and I pray God that many more years of abundant labors and rich harvests may be awarded you."

It will be remembered that Dr. Yeaman was a prominent young lawyer at Calhoun, Ky., when he was converted under the ministry of Dr. Coleman and by him received into the church, baptized and ordained to the ministry, and that now he is justly regarded by his denomination as one of the most talented pulpits orators west of the Mississippi. We are permitted to publish the foregoing extract that it may be seen in what esteem our distinguished townman is held abroad.

To the Public.

We have opened a complete line of Fancy and Staple Groceries, in the house recently vacated by G. L. Klein & Co., and will endeavor to run a first-class Grocery in first-class style.

We cordially invite our friends to call and examine our stock, or send us their orders, and they will receive the most polite attention. Goods delivered to any part of the town free.

Very respectfully, LEE B. STEVENS, RANDAL T. COLLINS.

Rough River Navigation.

WASHINGTON, Jan. 25.—The Committee on Rivers and Harbors to-day reported favorably Representative Ellis' bill making an appropriation for the rebuilding of the Rumsey lock on Green river. The bill appropriates $35,000. Chairman Blanchard said this evening that he hoped to get the bill passed within the next ten days. The appropriation has been in the bill since the river and harbor appropriation, but was left out by an oversight. Mr. Ellis says the navigation on Green river at Rumsey lock has been forced to suspend, as the river at that point is not navigable.

In our letter to the Herald last week we called the attention of the public to the fact that now is the time for us to secure navigation on Rough river.

The above clipping from the Courier-Journal shows what our adjoining Congressional district is doing for its own interests, and that means an outlet for us. Congress will appropriate the $35,000 for the Rumsey lock and the same engineer could easily superintend the work at both places. So, now let the people in this county send up a strong petition to the Hon. A. B. Montgomery, and he will feel more like pushing our already begun work to its completion. Very truly,

A CITIZEN.

A Circulating Library.

The following is a plan by which one can be built up in the town of Hartford: Since a library has been established in connection with Hartford College, and secured in such a manner that it will go to the common school district in which Hartford is located, and so secured that it will forever remain the property of the public; and, since it has become necessary to enlarge and better equip this most important factor in educational, social and religious work, the Trustees of said library make the following propositions that will not only enlarge it, but will give all the friends of the library and school a chance to enjoy the benefits of a circulating library:

1. To the person or persons who are first in making a donation, either of money, books, or furniture, or composed of all, and amounting to $50 in value, the Trustees and managers of the Lytle Library, of Hartford College and Business Institute will allow said person or persons the privilege of letting either their own names, in form of a body, or the name of some particular friend or ancestor, as they prefer, to become a part of the name of the library; and the person or persons will be granted the privilege of using the books free of charge, so long as they conform to the rules and regulations of same.

2. Anyone contributing money, books, or furniture to the amount of $10 to said library, may have the free use of the books of same for a term of 20 years, provided, said person conforms to the rules and regulations of the library.

3. Anyone making a contribution amounting to $1 in value, will be granted the free use of the books of the library for one year. Said person shall also conform to the rules of the library.

The above offers will stand good until the board of trustees see fit to withdraw them, of which due notice will be given.

For the present, address Miss Lula Johnson, Secretary of board of trustees of L. L. of H. C. & B. I.

VERSE I.

"Beautiful snow, beautiful snow," Those who like bargains always go To Carson & Co.'s elegant store, Because for their money they can get more Than elsewhere.

VERSE II.

The second verse we are unable to proceed with for two reasons: First—Because we are stuck for rhymes and second, because customers are so thick that our time is entirely occupied in attending to their wants. If you happen to need a new pair of shoes, do not let the disappointment which the absence of the two verses gives you, prevent you from coming to our store to secure them.

Jan. 23, 1893.—A house owned by C. W. Hussey and occupied by his son-in-law, R. R. Cundiff, was burned last Tuesday evening. A defective chimney was the cause. Most all the valuable within were saved, making Mr. Hussey the greatest loser. There was no insurance.

The General is a wide-awake merchant, weighs only 321 pounds, and all who call at his store will find him not only a jolly good fellow, but a Democrat of the old school.

"Mary Ann" seems to think that we spoke lightly of the Mahon-Biley marriage. A young lady's hopes may be blighted, but she may so darken a young man's future that he would wish a thousand times to be dead. We sincerely believe that women rule the world, but often is her influence used to attain her individual desires when it is contrary to the good of society.

Pope says:

Believe me, good as well as ill, Woman's best is a contradiction still.

Man should not impose upon the tender nature of the female sex, for beneath that body lies a heart which runs out in behalf of all God's rougher creation, and with a sympathy that cannot be surpassed. While all of this is true, we think that woman should recognize that she holds the controlling interest and should strive to make the world grander and more noble. Then in the words of the poet, we say: Go, wondrous creature! Mount where science guides, Go, measure earth, weigh air, and state the tides.

We are sorry that Gov. Brown withdrew from the Senatorial race. We think he would have been a sure winner. Now give us Lindsay. BEN.
